We can and should do more for our California public schools and colleges!

California has the 5th largest economy in the world, yet still ranks 39th in the country in per-student funding.

We can and must do better for our students.

The Schools & Communities First initiative is an opportunity to better fund our schools by ending property tax loopholes big corporations have exploited for more than 40 years. It will require they pay their fair share just like every California homeowner already does. It also reclaims $12 billion each year for schools, health care, and other vital local services.

Your vote for Schools & Communities First will allow schools across California to hire more counselors and nurses, reduce class sizes, offer more support services for students in need, hire more full-time faculty, and more.
